In partnership with the Fresno County Superintendent of Schools and community partner Keshia Thomas, Gaston Middle School is looking for women leaders to be mentors to students who may not have a mother figure in their lives. Interested women are invited to attend Muffins with Moms, featuring guest speaker Angie Barfield, coordinator with Student Intervention and Prevention for Fresno County Superintendent of Schools. The theme for the event is “Building Bridges for the Future” with a focus on four important values: loyalty, observing, value of self and others and excellence. Gaston Middle School is also seeking donations of muffins, juice and water for the event.

“Our students don’t just need support in the classroom to be successful, they also need a strong foundation at home. Providing a caring role model and mother figure to some of our students can mean all the difference and we’re thankful to Jim Yovino and the Fresno County Superintendent of Schools office for their partnership in putting on this event,” said Fresno Unified Superintendent Bob Nelson.
