With an initial target of raising $2,000, the students more than doubled their goal by taking small boxes home and filling them with change. Steven Slattery's fourth grade class raised $440.80 and won the classroom competition. The campus will hold a school-wide celebration for their generosity and hard work.

“I am absolutely amazed at the more than $4,000 Easterby was able to raise to help children with cancer. I am proud of our students for learning what it means to help others,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
