Pre-kindergarten students from Greenberg Elementary School will exhibit art work inspired by Vincent Van Gogh and Wassily Kandinsky at tonight’s ArtHop. Through the process of creating the art, the students learned at a young age about dedication and working together. The art work will be on display at the Fulton Street Café through May 25.

“Art in the classroom, even for our youngest students, enhances learning in all areas. Having the opportunity to display their art for their community is a thrilling experience for the students and their families,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
