McLane High School’s ArtVenture Academy will display art recognizing the 9/11 attack on the Twin Towers. The art was created by students in 2002 and in 2011, the 10th anniversary of the attack. The art will be displayed in the hallways of the T Building, leading to teacher Marc Patterson’s classroom in T1. Art pieces reflect student responses to the attack in mixed media, as well as portraits of victims and first responders. The display also includes student writing, poetry, haiku, and personal stories.

“This 9/11 art display is a wonderful example of engaging students in art and writing by having them reflect on relevant and significant events in their community and in their lives,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
