MEDIA RELEASE

Hoover High Students Learn from Emergency Responders

What: Hoover High School students will learn directly from emergency responders during public service day

When: Monday, Oct. 21, 2019
9 a.m.-noon

Where: Hoover High School
5150 N. First St. (93710)

Students in the Public Service Pathway will learn directly from professionals from 10 different city and county local EMT, fire and police agencies about how they got into their careers. Over 200 students are enrolled in Hoover’s Public Service Pathway and this yearly event will host the largest number of industry presentations to date. Emergency responders will offer learning sessions and hands-on displays that will allow students to hear about the industry and careers first-hand.

“I am extremely proud of our students and staff at Hoover High School for creating an event where students can learn directly from public service employees and their real-world experiences. The more information our students have, the more prepared they are to choose the right career,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
