Fresno Unified will host a districtwide choral festival, featuring eight middle school groups in the morning and eight high school groups in the afternoon. After each choir performs, Fresno State music professor Anna Hamre will provide valuable feedback.

This annual festival offers an opportunity for middle and high school choirs in the district to hear each other perform and directors to collaborate. Schools participating are Ahwahnee, Baird, Computech, Cooper Academy, Gaston, Scandinavian, Tenaya and Tioga middle schools and Edison, Fresno, Hoover, McLane, Roosevelt and Sunnyside high schools.

At the end of the festival (approximately 3:15 p.m.) an “open mic” session gives groups another opportunity to perform for each other.

“What a treat to have our middle and high school choirs districtwide gathered in one spot. These talented students will have an opportunity to hear and learn from each other,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
