Fresno Unified is partnering with Valley PBS to present “Local Learning” to build literacy skills for kindergarten through third-grade students. The program, airing June 22 through Aug. 14, will support distance learning efforts during school closures and help prepare students for the new school year. “Local Learning” will air from 8-9 a.m., with expanded hours likely in the following weeks.

Fresno Unified teachers Joe Dawson, Isabel Mayoral, Lisa Nix, and Carlanda Williams will be featured in the programs, providing entertaining lessons.

“During this time of distance learning, we are using all available resources to provide more learning options for our families. Valley PBS has been a great ally, including showcasing our wonderful teachers. We are happy that during the summer we can offer more resources to our families,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
