Families in the Fresno High region are invited to a Health & Wellness Fair that will include motivational performances by students. Families can learn more about the connection between health and wellness and students’ academic achievement. Sponsors include Parent University, Fresno Unified trustee Andy Levine and Fort Miller Middle School.

The Health & Wellness Fair is part of a series of family engagement events being held in the high school regions in support of the district’s board-adopted Family Goal to “Increase inclusive opportunities for families to engage in their students’ education.”
“I invite our Fresno High region families to come out for a fun and informative evening to learn how healthy habits are connected to student success and what the district can provide in support,” said Superintendent Bob Nelson.
